

AIMS Complaint Form

Before raising a complaint or concern about a member of AIMS, it is recommended to try to resolve the issue directly with the member, if this is appropriate and safe to do so.

If direct resolution is not possible or has not been satisfactory, please review AIMS' Complaints Process and the accompanying Guidance Notes before completing a complaint form.

Scope of Complaints

Complaints or concerns must relate to breaches of AIMS' Code of Ethics and Practice. AIMS cannot investigate matters that do not involve such breaches.

Islamic Ethical Standards

In addition to the protocols outlined in the complaints process, all procedures must comply with Islamic ethical standards and principles. Definitions, procedures, and decisions must be consistent with authentic Islamic teachings, ensuring fairness, justice, and moral integrity in all stages of the complaints process.

Support in Completing the Complaint Form

AIMS staff are available to explain the complaints process and can provide guidance on completing the form. Please contact us by email at info@aimsonline.org

Multiple Memberships

If the member belongs to more than one professional or regulatory body (including those under statutory regulation or Accredited Registers recognised by the Professional Standards Authority), you will need to decide which organisation to submit your complaint to. Relevant details are usually included in your contract with the member or on their website.

Handling of Information

Information you provide will be shared with those investigating the complaint and with the member who is the subject of the complaint, as necessary.

Personal information, including your name, contact details, emails, and correspondence, will be kept securely on AIMS' systems for the duration of the investigation and for 3 years after it concludes.

Summary information about the complaint may be retained for up to 10 years for record-keeping and organisational learning purposes.

Section 1 – General Information

1.1 Details of the person making the complaint

From this point onward, your name will normally be shared with the member or organisation you are submitting a complaint about. Other contact details will not be disclosed.

If you have safety concerns and wish for your name to be withheld, please inform AIMS, and appropriate measures will be taken to protect your identity.

Where reasonable adjustments are required—for example, in the conduct of a hearing—the member or organisation you are complaining about may need to be informed of the adjustment. However, wherever possible, the nature of any disability or sensitive personal information will not be disclosed.

All such measures will be implemented in line with Islamic ethical standards, ensuring fairness, respect, and protection for all parties involved while maintaining the integrity of the complaints process.
